IMPRISONMENT

The defendant is committed to the custody of the United States Bureau of Prisons to be imprisoned for a total term of 1 day or time served, whichever is less.

Defendant Timothy Patterson's offense level is 10 and his criminal history is category I. His advisory guidelines sentence range is 6 to 12 months. The Court has considered the guideline range established for the applicable category of offense committed by the applicable category of defendant. The Court has also taken into consideration other sentencing goals. Specifically, the Court has also considered the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a)(1)-(7).

The Court believes that a sentence of 1 day, or time served, with 7 months home detention as a condition of supervised release, reflects the seriousness of the offense that Patterson has committed and will promote respect for the law, provide just punishment, and afford adequate deterrence. While the sentence varies from the suggested range under the Sentencing Guidelines, which allow for home detention to substitute for imprisonment, but only if at least 1 month of imprisonment is imposed, see U.S.S.G. § 5C1.1(c)(2), it is a more reasonable sentence and more faithfully promotes the sentencing goals Congress laid down in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

Patterson's behavior was aberrant for him, and the Court does not believe that he poses any future risk of criminality. Moreover, the veterinary equipment stolen from the Crownpoint Institute of Technology has been returned. At the end of the day, the Court does not believe that further incarceration will serve any useful purpose. Nonetheless, Patterson has committed a serious theft and some significant restrictions on his liberty are important for just punishment and deterrence. The Court believes that the 7 months of home detention it is imposing as a condition of supervised release adequately meets these needs without being unnecessarily punitive.

A sentence within the guidelines range would be excessive here and would contravene Congress' command that courts impose sentences that are sufficient but not greater than is necessary to comply with the purposes of punishment set forth in the Sentencing Reform Act. The Court recognizes the seriousness of the offense Patterson committed, but believes that the sentence it imposes sufficiently takes that into account. A longer sentence would be unnecessarily punitive and would not serve any useful purpose. The sentence the Court imposes varies from the guidelines, but in these circumstances, such a sentence more effectively promotes the goals outlined in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

☐ The court makes these recommendations to the Bureau of Prisons:

☐ The defendant is remanded to the custody of the United States Marshal.

☐ The defendant must surrender to the United States Marshal for this district:

☐ at on

☐ as notified by the United States Marshal.

☐ The defendant must surrender for service of sentence at the institution designated by the Bureau of Prisons:

☐ before 2 p.m. on

☐ as notified by the United States Marshal

☐ as notified by the Probation or Pretrial Service Office.
